INJURIES RESULT FATALLY TO AGED VETERAN OF CIVIL WAR

W. H. H. Wickerham Passed Away at Hospital in Monongahela on Tuesday

FATALLY INJURED BY TRUCK

William Henry Harrison Wickerham, veteran of the civil war and one of the oldest residents of this section, passed away at the Memorial hospital, Monongahela, Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, aged 84 years. His death was due to internal injuries received when struck by a motor truck September 24 last, near Black Diamond. Mr. Wickerham was walking along the road when the truck struck him from behind, knocking him to the side of the road and inflicting injuries which later proved fatal. The aged veteran was rushed to the hospital for treatment, and has since hovered between life and death until the hour of his demise on Tuesday.

The deceased was born on the old Wickerham homestead in Carroll township, now the site of Eldora Park, September 24, 1839, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wickerham, lifetime residents of this section He was named for General William Henry Harrison, known as "Old Tippecanoe," and as a consequence he inherited the old warrior's nickname and was known as "Tip" from boyhood to the day of his death.

The deceased was descended from sturdy stock, his great, great grandfather, Adam Wickerham, emigrating to the United States from Germany early in the 18th century and settling at Parkinson's Ferry, now Monongahela City. The elder Wickerham had three sons, and one of these, Adam, Jr., grandfather of the deceased, purchased the farm in Carroll township and moved out to the present home site of the Wickerhams. It was here that "Tip's" father, William, lived and where the deceased has resided all his life.

In 1861 young Wickerham enlisted and went out with the 22nd Pennsylvania Cavalry, which incorporated the famous Ringgold Battalion of civil war fame. He was in a number of engagements, and was taken prisoner, being confined at Lobby for thirteen months.

At the close of the war he returned to the old homestead, and in 1867 was united in marriage to Miss Adeline Jenkins of Centerville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Jenkins. To this union three children were born, two dying in infantry. One son, Jas. H. Wickerham, resides on the old home place. There are alsi six grandchildren and one great grandchild surviving.

Funeral services will be conducted at the late home, Eldora Park, Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. D. M. Paul, of the Methodist Episcopal church of Monongahela, followed by a short service at the mortuary chapel in the Monongahela cemetery, where interment will be made.

The deceased was employed for a number of years at Eldora Park as a special officer, and was widely known throughout all this section of the valley, numbering many Charleroi people among his friends, who will be grieved to learn of the death of this aged veteran.

REVISED CENSUS FIGURES FOR WASHINGTON COUNTY

The census bureau on Tuesday morning gave out the following revised figures for the 1920 census: Washington county Pa., 188,992, gain of 45 312 or 31.5 per cent; Allegheny county, Pa., 1,185,758, gain of 167.295 or 16.4 per cent.

One index of a man's value is his ability to work without supervision.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR AGED COUPLE

A farewell surprise party was held last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Crites, 212 Luella avenue, by their many friends and neighbors Mr. and Mrs. Crites have been life long residents of Charleroi but on account of ill health they have decided to make their future home in New Geneva. Mrs. Crites was presented with a beautiful silk umbrella and Mr. Crites, a box of beautiful linen handkerchiefs, given by their friends as a remembrance. A very pleasant evening was spent by all present. Music was the feature of the evening, after which a delicious lunch was served. At a late hour the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Crites health and prosperity in their new home.

RETURN VERDICT OF ACCIDENTAL DEATH

Coroner Greenlee held an inquest Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Crowley mortuary rooms, to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Harold Fitzmaurice, who fell under a truck of the Consumer's Coal company, on Tuesday, the 5th inst. The jury was composed of George eNwton, Geo. Arnold, George Fellows, Edwin Patton, S. L. Woodward and James Oates. The jury was able to ascertain the manner in which he met with his fatal injuries from a boy witness, who showed how the lad attempted to jump on to the truck of the coal company, which was standing in front of the Crowley building as one of the exhibits in the testimony. After making the inquiry the jury returned a verdict of accidental death from shock and injuries and exonerated the driver from all blame.

Elks' Bowling League Is Steadily Growing in Interest

Interest in the games of the bowling league at the Elks Club, is on the increase and the "bleachers" are crowded nightly with the "fans" cheering their favorites and applauding plays in the most partisan fashion.

Last night Capt. Arch Osborne's "Lunks" hitched up with Capt. Walter Campbell's "Oilers" and took two of the three games in handy fashion. The "Oilers" struck but one "gusher," finally penetrating pay sand in the third frame, when they hung the crepe on Archie's outfit by a good margin. Dave Dixon's "southside" delivery was the envy of all the bowlers, while Riley also showed the spectators that he knew how to "put 'em over." However, Osborne was out to win, and his individual score shows that he was just as successful in bowling pins over as in "bending them over" the plate in ball games.

Tonight the "Wahoos" play the "Trimmers," and Capt. Russell of the "Wahoos" says he won't be satisfied with less than three games from the "Trimmers." However, Capt. Roy Carson, who will lead the "Trimmers," says that Russell will change his opinion after he is through with the games this evening. The scores last evening were:

KIMMEL BUYS THE CRUMRINE HOLDINGS

An important business deal was completed last week at Scenery Hill when S. Z. Crumrine, who for 16 years has been postmaster and proprietor of a general store there, sold his entire stock of merchandise and rented his residence, store room, warehouse and garage to D. E. Kimmel of Monongahela. Possession is given immediately. Mr. Kimmel for a number of years was a practicing veterinary and liveryman at Brownsville and Charleroi, disposing of his business here last summer and purchasing a farm near Monongahela, which he operated until lately, when he concluded to sell it and embark in the mercantile business. Mr. Crumrine will retain the postoffice.

MANY FIRMS STAND TO LOSE UNLESS THEY ARE REGISTERED

WERE MARRIED WEDNESDAY NOON

Mr. Harry Van Dolson and Miss Elizabeth S. Hall were married at the Methodist Episcopal parsonage at noon Wednesday. Only immediate relatives were present. The bride wore a blue traveling suit with corsage bouquet of roses. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Van Dolson will make their home in Charleroi.

'SQUIRE NEWTON TAKES AIR FLIGHT

It isn't often that 'Squire George Newton gets "up in the air," but on Wednesday afternoon he experienced the "real thing" when he made a flight with the Monessen aviator. The start was made from the aviation field at Linn's grove, back of Belle Vernon, and the trip included a flight over West Newton, across to Donora, thence over Charleroi and back to the landing field. The 'Squire said it was peculiar sensation to sit among the clouds and look down upon the earth; that the houses looked like beehives, while people on the streets looked small indeed. It was alright, he said when the plane moved along on an even keel, but when the aviator made one of those turns and stood the machine on end it was rather terrifying to the novice. Just the same the 'Squire enjoyed the experience immensly, but said he was mighty glad when he stepped back to earth again.

The flight was taken on a "dare" made by Joseph Pirse, who with Mr. Newton had driven over in Mr. Prise's machine to the aviation field in the afternoon. Mr. Prise said he would not like to make a flight, but the 'Squire said he would, whereupon Prise "dared" him to make good, and the 'Squire did. He now has "something on" his friends, for while he was "up in the air" he did not lose his head.

BID RECEIVED FOR MONONGAHELA PIKE

Renewed interest in road building was shown at Harrisburg on Wednesday at the opening of bids for 20 road construction projects by the State Highway Department, when 57 presented bids. Two projects did not receive bids and two bids were rejected.

The low bidders on Western Pennsylvania projects included: Washington county, North and South Strabane townships, 22,845 feet, to Burgess & Dorrier, Scottsville, $17,494.60. No bids were received for 16,137 feet in Somerset and Nottingham township, this county.

These two Washington county projects are on Route 181, Monongahela pike. Bids for this project have been asked for several times and have been rejected as too high.

Decision to be Given on Act of Assembly in Jefferson County

MUCH DEPENDS ON OPINION

According to the Brookville American, published at Brookville, Pa., three or four hundred business firms in Jefferson county have not complied with the new law requiring registration of firm names. The penalty for failure to comply with the law is a fine of $500 and a sentence of one year in the penitentiary if the court so desires. During the past few weeks, since attention was called to the provisions of the law, a number of Jefferson county firms have registered with the Secretary of the Commonwealthh and the Prothonotary of the county.

This phase of the law caused two suits which were before the Jefferson county court to be withdrawn and placed on the argument list. The contention of the lawyers for the defense is that the firms have no legal standing and therefore cannot collect any of their accounts if they find it necessary to bring suit. Judge Charles Corbet has been asked to rule on this question, and if he decides the firms do not have a legal existence by reason of not filing their firm names the parties in question stand to lose $2,000.

It is estimated that at least fifteen firms in Jefferson county interested in law suits depend upon their standing in the interpretation of the new law. If a firm that is not registered cannot collect money by a suit then all of the 15 suits now entered will fall. In fact, if this contention is sustained, the accounts that any form holds against individuals or any other firm cannot be collected by legal process unless they have complied with the provisions of the new law.

It is estimated that many firms and individuals throughout the state have not complied with the law, which would jeopardize their standing should they be called upon to go into court to enforce a claim, if the provisions of the new law will hold.

"It is certain that if the League of Nations had been in existence we would never have gained our independence," declares Senator Miles Poindexter, Chairman of the Republican Senatorial Committee in a recent interview urging the election of a Republican majority in the United States Senate. "We have fought four wars with European nations to prevent the control of American affairs by Europe and won them all. Don't let us now commit the supreme folly and the supreme sacrifice of voluntarily surrendering our independence and separate station in the world, which we have won."

After recalling President Wilson's representation to European and Asiatic nations that he was authorized by the people of the United States to commit them to the "supreme sacrifice" of giving up our separate national fortunes and "joining our fortunes with the fortunes of men everywhere," Senator Poindexter declares that the President was not so authorized, and that whether he or his successor is to be so authorized is to be determined in the coming election.

"One vote may determine the fate of the nation. The election of one Democratic Senator pledged to follow his party in the sacrifice of his country may unite us in governmental union with Europe and Asia and by the election of a Republican Senator in any one State pledged to oppose this sacrifice our independence and the chief hope of the world for liberty and peace may be preserved. The Senate is the High Court of final decision and the action of the Senate may be determined by a single vote. In the face of this issue we can not afford to allow personal preferences, if they exist, to override principle. The consequences are too vital.

Enumerating instances in which the Demacratic party, under its present leadership has proposed the surrender of American national rights, Senator Poindexter says, "In the process of supreme sacrifice the Democratic party has repudiated its solemn pledge and internationalized the Panama Canal, denying our people any greater privileges in the Canal they had built and those enjoyed by other nations that never contributed a dollar nor owned a foot of its soil." As a further step in this process of "joining our fortunes with the fortunes of men everywhere," the President proposed the removal of economic barriers, which, applied as state would open our ports as he has opened the Canal to foreign goods or the same terms as our own. It is a process of destruction and well denominated by him a "supreme sacrifice."

Senator Poindexter also declares his opposition to American participation in mandates by which a military government would be imposed upon Mesopotamia and Syria. He favors the promotion of disarmament and the preservation of peace, but asserts that if disarmament can be brought about it will be by friendly agreement, as with Canada, and not by a military league as established at Paris. Relative to the preservation of peace he says, "If the future peace of the world is to be encouraged it will be by themodification of international law and the establishment of a court of law judges to which the nations, in a free association, will submit disputes. Only war will come from the setting up of a centralized military power, which, in its assembly, exercising, as the President has said, 'the major forces of mankind' will subject the world to an unscrupulous and irresponsible political and military despotism. The Democratic party will deny that such power will be unscrupulous or despotic. The history of the world proves that it will be."

Because the contest for control of the Senate is a close one and the result may hinge upon the outcome in any one of several States, Senator Poindexter urges all believers in "America First" and the preservation of national independence to support only eRpublican candidates for the Senate.

ELECTRICITY

The knowledge and use of electricity has been developed more in the past three-quarters of a century than in the entire span of time previous to 1850.

But not all the work of discovering and harnessing electricty has been accomplished in our time.

The Greeks were the first electricians.

There is a bit of poetic license in the statement, but it is true that the Greeks 2,500 years ago made the first record of electrical phenomena in history. They discovered that amber, when rubbed, would attract certain light articles.

The Greek word for amber was "election," and from it this strange new power received the word "electricity."

For many centuries the only known means of generating electricity was by friction, just as prehistoric man's only way of making fire has been by friction.

Generating the new power was comparatively easy, but how to hold it was another.

In the 18th century experiments made with glass jars lined with tin foil at Leyden University marked the beginning of the storage battery. At that time all discoveries and discoveries connected with electricity were regarded merely as scientific curiosities that would never be of practical value. Today it is the great driving force of the universe.

UNITY IS UNANIMOUS.

The official returns from the Maine election are now in, and the brisk little town of Unity wins the banner. There are 404 votes in Unity and all 404 were cast for the Republican ticket. Unity is unanimous.

In this respect Unity sees another Maine town, Castle Hill, and goes it one better. There are 101 votes in Castle Hill. Of these the Republican ticket got 100 and the Democratic ticket 1. As Chairman Hays puts it, "the postmaster seems to have stood firm." Unity's postmaster either did not vote or voted Republican.

Even if Postmaster General Burleson were disposed to reprimand the Unity postmaster, in the ordinary processes of Burlesonian mail delivery a letter of rebuke would not get from Washington to Maine before March 4, and on that date Mr. Burleson will not be rotent in the post office.

MISERY'S SECRET

The secret of being miserable is to have leisure to bother about whether you are happy or not, says George Bernard Shaw.

The cure for it is occupation, because occupation means preoccupation, and the preoccupied person is neither happy nor unhappy, but simply alive and active, which is pleasanter than any happiness, until you are tired of it.

That is why it is necessary to happiness that one should be tired. Music after dinner is pleasant; music before breakfast is so unpleasant as to be clearly unnatural.

To people who are not overworked, holidays are a nuisance. To people who are, and who can afford them, they are a troublesome necessity. A perpetual holiday is a good working definition of hell.

A QUEER DEAL.

When the United States sold left-over war material, which cost about $1,500,000,000 to France for $400,000,000 it was said the government would sustain loss by that transaction also by bringing the material home and selling it here. France has not yet paid for the material, and it now appears that some of it has already been sold by France in this country while more is to be sold here. So the country is confronted with a curious situation, in which France buys from the United States on credit and sells the same goods to the people of the United States in order to pay the debt. A full inquiry by Congress into all of the ins and outs of this strange deal might reveal facts of great interest.

HOLD TO YOUR JOB

There are some people who take no interest in their work, and spend much of their time in looking at the clock. During the rush times prevailing some months ago, such folks would get a job and keep it. If the employer did not like them, he would get some one else. The employe was confident he could get another job, allright.

The time when that sort of thing could go has passed. Employes are looking their help over, and those who made a record as loafer are likely to have an extended vacation.

This is a working world. He who will not work shall not eat, says the Bible. While no one will be allowed to starve, the lazy do not fare at all well.

The twenty-year anniversary of Galveston's destruction by tropical hurricane and tidal wave brings reminders of a remarkable example of municipal pluck. The great storm cut Galveston's population most in half 8,000 having been killed and 10,000 having fled. The remaining 20,000 not only built the great sea wall and causeway but raised the level of a considerable part of the town to a height of nearly twenty feet by putting the houses, sidewalks, and car tracks on stilts and pumping in sand and earth. Now Galveston has a settled population of 50,000, and being "the Atlantic City of the Gulf" as well as the chief port of Texas, it has a visiting population of about a million annually.

Bees as Architects.

A famous mathematician of the early eighteenth century who perceived that the bottoms of the cells in a honeycomb were formed by three lozenge-shaped plates inclined the angles of the lozenges. The greater were 109 deg. 28 min., the lesser, 70 deg. 32 min. Another task of science, interested us in the precision of the angles, propounded the following problem to Koenig, the geometrician: "What are the angles of a hexagonal cell with a pyramidical bottom, formed of three similar and equal rhomboid plates that require the least possible material?" Koenig, ignorant of what had suggested the proposition, found by calculus that the greater angles of the rhombs should be 109 deg. 26 min. and the lesser angles, 70 deg. 34 min. He was wrong by two minutes in each dimension. What human architect has equaled the economy of the bee?—Youth's Companion.

Oil Fields Extend Out Into Ocean.

One of the oil wells of the Pacific coast, lying within a few miles of Los Angeles, extends out into the Pacific ocean, and a considerable number of oil wells are located at some distance from the shore. In England, the workings of the Cumberland coal field run two miles out under the sea. The ventilation of these mines is a nice engineering problem, but is successfully accomplished. At Workington, Eng., in the year 1837, before the science of surveying was as highly developed as at present, the sea burst through and the workers were drowned. Many of the oldest mines in England, long ago worked out and abandoned, have filled with water in the lapse of time, and constitute an ever present danger to the miners in adjacent mines, who may be drowned at any moment.

Paying on the Nail.

An expression with which everyone is familiar is "paying on the nail," comes from the old method of settling accounts. In the early day of trade and commerce merchants on change paid their debts by counting out their gold on to a copper "nail" or table, in the market-place. Written receipts are now almost universal, and these nails are no longer used; but two splendid specimens still remain among the most interesting treasures of the ancient port of Bristol. They are each about four feet high, shaped like a gigantic hour-glass. There they stand in the busy street, a lasting monument to the integrity of the old trading and merchant class who paid on the nail and scorned a receipt.

Wholesome Joy in Life.

Real joy gives one the funny side of life. Folks with overdoses of dyspeptic religion look askance at laughter-provoking amusements. They think the devil has a mortgage on everything that gives people thrills. That's not so. Men are made to enjoy certain diversions that stir the nature and when these are denied they will do something else under cover. You must learn to make people enjoy your presence if you are to help them. There is no reason that your uncle can see why religion and good times can't be on good terms. The right kind of pleasures help people to find wholesome joy in life.—Grit.

Dictionary of Arabs Is Ponderous.

Arabic dictionaries of 500 years ago, which are still the great authorities for students in that language, more than surpass the ponderous dictionaries of Europe, even the famous many-volumed etymological index of Larousse, the monumental work of all modern tongues. The Arabic dictionary most used by scholars familiar with no other language, which was made in the time of the great Caliph Haroun al Raschid, is in 20 quarto volumes and weighs close to 100 pounds. There is a 50-pound, ten-volume abridgement of it, presumably for use at home.

Real Joy Giving.

Joy giving comes within the reach of everybody. Sometimes people must fashion their tastes all anew. That's because they are too mechanical. People want to give joy ready made. That's not the way it's done. You must be genuinely in earnest and put yourself into it if you are to get results that count. You must not think of the effects. You must not think of the thing you do—you must do it for its own merit. It must be so completely lost in spontaneous good will that motives never suggested themselves.

LOWER PRICES

Prices are dropping, slowly to be sure, but nevertheless they are on their way downward. Just how far they are to drop we do not know nor can we venture an accurate guess. We do know, however, that we are keeping in touch with the markets and adjusting our prices in accordance with each item as it is affected. A noteworthy feature in connection with the general reduction now going on is the fact that our prices, our top prices, are and have been, considerably lower than the present reduced prices of a number of Pittsburgh stores, for the same grade of merchandise. This fact in itself is indicative of the spirit of fair dealing and small profit policy that has been adhered to by this store. While some lines have not been affected, it does not mean that they will not be, and we will govern our prices in accordance with the decline. Emerson's law of compensation that "Wherever there is profit; there also are losses," holds true and we have made profit we are now ready to take losses as the occasion requires. Our stocks are complete and our assortments well diversified and the purchaser need have no hesitancy about purchasing as our prices will be the lowest consistent prices, not only now, but during and after this period of readjustment.

PAYS LARGE SUM FOR BACK TAXES

A controversy that has existed for a number of years between the borough of Donora and Capt. John Thomas of Webster ,was apparently settled on Monday last by the payment by the land owner to the borough of the sum of $5,458.83, which represented the amount of back taxes due the borough and the school district.

The question in dispute was as to the legality of the extension of the borough lines of Donora to include the Thomas property which is located between Scott street and the Heslep reservation on Meldon avenue in the steel town. Capt. Thomas insisted his property was not in the borough limits and fought for his contention. The borough established its rights in court, and as a consequence Capt. Thomas had to pay the back taxes The contention has been on for years, but it is believed that it is now at an end.

ASK HEAVY DAMAGES FOR WOUNDING BOY

A suit to recover -25,000 damages for alleged personal injuries has been brought against Max Birkenfield ,a merchant of West Brownsville. by Gaza Bazy, a minor, by his father and next friend. Paul Bazy, and Paul Bazy in his own right. The statement of claim sets forth the allegation that on May 26, 1920, Gaza Bazy was shot and wounded by a revolver bullet fired by the defendant. It is charged that the defendant fired five shots at the plaintiff while he was running towards his home, one of the bullets striking him in the back, under the shoulder. It passed in a diagonal direction through the body and came out at the right lower ribs, inflicting serious internal injuries to vital organs.

It was necessary to take the boy to a hospital, where he was subjected to surgical and medical treatment to alleviate his sufferings. It is averred he is still suffering great physical pain, and that he will be incapacitated for physical work of any kind for a long period of time It is said the shooting was malicious and unjustified

WANT SIDEWALKS ON THE IRON BRIDGE

Steps were taken Monday night last at the meetings of the councils of the boroughs of Brownsville and South Brownsville toward immediate amelioration of the congested and dangerous condition existing at the iron bridge connecting the two boroughs. Each council appointed a special committee of three members, to meet and confer with state and county authorities for the purpose of considering construction of sidewalks on each side of the bridge.

Traffic conditions are such at that point that life and personal safety are constantly menaced every minute of the day, as the present entire width of the roadway crossing the bridge is really not enough to care for the vehicle traffic alone, without taking into consideration the great volume of pedestrian traffic.

The iron bridge at that point is said to be the first iron bridge in the country; at least it is the first one constructed in this part of Pennsylvania, and is altogether inadequate to meet present day requirements, as, in addition to the constant flow of local traffic, it must also accommodate the ever-increasing stream of through motor traffic in each direction, a large proporton of this being heavily laden motor trucks. The Iron Bridge is a land mark on the National Pike, which was erected at the time of the construction of the great highway.

RETURNS TO SCHOOL BY AIRPLANE ROUTE

Miss Evelyn O'Neil of Donora, a student at the Indiana State Normal School, enjoyed the unique experience on Monday of returning to school by the airplane route. Being at home over Sunday, she decided on an airplane trip back to the school. The big plane in charge of Lieut. John P. Andrews left Donora at 12:30 o'clock, with Miss O'Neil as a passenger, and at 1:45 o'clock they looped the loop over the school at Indiana, after which the landing was made.

NOTES OF THE STATE HIGHWAY

State Highway Commissioner Lewis S. Sadler these days is urging visitors to the Department to aid in the conservation of old roads while the State's new system of highways is being constructed. The Highway Commissioner suggests that drivers of all motor vehicles and particularly drivers of trucksmake an effort so to use the old-type highways that with moderate maintenance expenditures they will keep in traveling condition until the new primary system is completed. Commissioner Sadler calls particular attention to the drivers of heavy trucks who send these vehicles over earth or stone roads at such speeds that the impact of the heavy wheels breaks down the foundation and causes quick deterioration. He also calls attention to the operation of solid tired trucks on the wheels of which the rubber has worn down to the rim, which becomes jaggged and continually punishes the road. Heavily-laden trucks, says the Commissioner, can pass over old-type highways without inflicting serious damage if they proceed slowly and with caution. It is a suggestion of the Commissioner that firms or individuals which operate fleets of trucks will aid in the conservation of the State's road system if they establish schools for their drivers where the latter would receive proper instructions in handling vehicles.

Remove "Trigging" Stones

Attention iscalled by the Department to the practice indulged in by drivers of trucks and passenger cars on hills in all parts of the Commonwealth of leaving on the highways the stones with which they "trig" or block their rear wheels when the stop is made on a hill. This is a particular dangerous practice and is against the law. A stiff fine is provided. It is pointed out that it is a very easy matter to remove the stones: and this removal is part of the courtesy which all drivers owe to other users of the highway. Recently a fleet of heavy trucks stopped on the eastern ascent of Tuscorora Mountain in Fulton County. The drivers of 27 big machines placed "trigging" stones behind each rear wheel. When theconvoy moved westward these stones were allowed to remain on thehighway. A State policeman who observed the last of the caravan getting away compelled the leader of the party to remove all of the heavy rocks. Attaches of the Department have instructions to cause the arrest of persons who violate the law in this particular.

Many Quarries At Work.

During the present season the State Highway Department had approximately 35 crushers at work in quarries in various sections of the State where suitable stone can be obtained for resurfacing operations. It is the aim of the Department to locate these quarries in those sections of the State not within reasonable hauling distance from railroads. The operations are manned entirely by Department forces and are run continuously

During 1920, up to October 2, the maintenance forces of the State Highway Department had entirely resurfaced 232.45 miles of medium roadway. This is 95 miles more than had been resurfaced in the same period of 1919. Up to October 2, 1920, the maintenance forces had oiled 1.098 miles of macadam thoroughfare.

Many Licenses Revoked

The State Highway Department during the present year has revoked the driver's licenses of approximately 70 persons. In the majority of these instances the person whose license was revoked has been convicted in a county court of having driven a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

An Expanation

We feel a word of explanation is due us in regard to a piece published in the Mail some time ago about the suit against the estate of Mrs. Snow. here is no ill will among the members of the families mentioned as it was only a process of law.

It's up to a man to tell of the good that's in him—his wife will fill in the blank spaces.

Famous "Prentice's Pillar."

God love her! she never failed to tell the truth of it. Every day to every tourist, Annie Wilson, the venerable nurse in the chapel of Roslin, told the true story of the "'Prentice's Pillar." Roslin chapel, near Edinburgh, Scotland, is a gem in architecture; but its chief jewel is the "'Prentice's Pillar." It stands out conspicuously where all is beautiful. Wreaths of stone, as of dripping morning dew, entwine it from base to capital. Here is the tragic story. The master of Roslin chapel received an order to execute a pillar of unique design for Roslin chapel. He could not do it. He went to Rome for plans. In his absence his young apprentice carved the marvelous pillar that you see today. The master returned. The apprentice stood breathless and glad before him, showing his work. In a fit of rage and jealousy the master seized a hammer and felled the youth to the floor. His dying words were these: "I did it, master, for God's glory and your gain." The poor "apprentice" is immortal.—Exchange.

Origin of Indian Summer.

The following explanation of the origin of the term "Indian summer" is sent in by a correspondent: "When the Pilgrim Fathers landed in New England they naturally knew little of the climatic conditions of their new home. With October came the first storm of snow. The frost nipped the woods, and the chill of the air foretold the coming of winter. 'We will now have winter,' it is related that one of the band remarked. But the friendly Indians pointed to the skies and to the west and told the Pilgrims that summer would come again before the winter. And they were right. In the last days of October it grew warm again. The air was filled with dancing sunshine. The world seemed wrapped in an atmosphere of sleepy warmth. The Pilgrims looked forward and remarked: 'Lo, the Indian's summer!'"

Co-operation in Whale Fishing.

The Twofold bay whale hunters tell that when the antarctic whales, on their way to northern waters for calving, appear off Twofold bay, with them come the "killers"—a fierce species of grampus whale, which is the great enemy of the true whale; and that these killers have learned to herd the whales into the bay for the human hunters to deal with. Man wants from the whale only the blubber, the whalebone (from the roof of the mouth), and, when it is present, the ambergris. The rest of the carcass is left to be devoured. It is said that the killers—the same killers come year after year to the bay—have learned that to co-operate with man is the easiest way to a feast of whale flesh and so concentrate their energies on driving a victim toward the whaling boats as dogs drive sheep.—London Morning Post.

Traits of the Grizzly.

So great is the strength of the grizzly bear that he can break the neck of a cow, horse or elk with a single blow and then rip the animal open from one end to the other with a single stroke. In earlier days he had no fear of man, but now will run if he sees one, unless he be disturbed in his feeding or is wounded, when he becomes a veritable demon of hate and rage. He is naturally of a mean, sullen, vicious nature, and is hard to trap. He often tears a trap to pieces, just to show his contempt for the trapper. If disabled, ill or wounded by a bullet, or attacked by bears or other wild animals, he will fight until the last, and while he may be finally killed he exacts a terrible toll and dies with his face to the foe. He is able to travel rapidly by means of a lope, and resembles, when running, a big boy playing leap frog.

Marching Through Georgia.

"If I had thought, when I made that march, that it would have inspired anyone to compose 'Marching Through Georgia,' I would have marched around the state," is a statement credited to Gen. Sherman. The general was staying at a Washington hotel when a band serenaded him with the piece, and he is said to have made the comment to a friend. The song was the product, in 1865, of Henry Clay Work, a popular song writer, who wrote many songs that were popular in Civil war time. He was a printer by trade and often composed the words while working at the "case," and when he was setting up music type he would compose the music "free hand." "Marching Through Georgia" is probably unique among war songs, in that it was composed without appearing in manuscript.

Newly married folk usually discover some errors in each other's diction which they feel their duty to correct. And no doubt this is quite permissible. But it is not within the limits of courtesy to make these corrections where others can hear them, nor is it consistent with courtesy to correct a child save, of course, the very young child, for errors in speech before other persons.

How to Melt Rubber.

To melt rubber place pure rubber in a mixing bowl, which is then filled with a pure grade of chloroform, and stirred at intervals. If the chloroform is not pure—that is, contains too much alcohol—it will not dissolve the rubber. The action of a solvent such as chloroform or benzol on rubber is gradual and somewhat slow.

Scientific Accuracy.

Physicists never tire of efforts to increase the accuracy of their knowledge of the fundamental facts of science. A redetermination of the velocity of light by the Fizeau toothed wheel method was made at Nice. These experiments were remarkable on account of the great distance from which the beam of light employed was transmitted. Previously such a beam had been caused to travel about 15 miles, but on this occasion the reflecting mirror was so placed that the total distance traversed by the beam, going and returning, was 37 miles. The mean of 1,109 observations gave for the velocity of light 186,275½ miles a second.

Commerce in Diamonds.

To produce a diamond in the rough costs approximately $7 a karat, according to estimates of various students of the diamond industry. If this diamond, properly cut, were sold at $30, it would net a good profit. In the South African mines, it is said, the diamonds are distributed so evenly that 100 tons of the bluish clay yields about 100 karats of diamonds. The production cost of a five-karat diamond is $35. If it is flawless and of good water it will easily net $3,500. The supply of diamonds is unlimited. Almost all of the world's supply comes from South Africa, and complete control of it is in the hands of one British concern.

Nugget Worth Finding.

A nugget of almost pure gold, weighing 12 pounds, was recently discovered near the Charters Tower mine in Queensland, Australia. For years the Towers of Queensland, which up to the seventies was a desolate tract, too poor and seedy for sheep, has boasted a premier position among Australian gold fields. Levels are worked at a depth of nearly a half a mile. This particular find is worth about $4,000. A 12-pound nugget is no record, but in most nuggets all is not gold that glitters; a 12 pounder of "almost pure gold" is rare. The world's record nugget came from Ballarat in 1858—2,217 ounces, worth $5,000.

Columbus discovered part of the western continent on Oct. 12, 1492, and therefore deserves the title, even though he did not see the mainland of America until 1498. John Cabot and his son, Sebastian, are considered the discoverers of the North American continent, having reached the coast of Labrador or Nova Scotia, June 24, 1497. Their voyage was inspired by the reports of Columbus' discoveries, and to Columbus is given credit for being pioneer discoverer [illegible] course, Columbus [illegible] American [illegible]

Bore Effectually Cured.

They tell the story in one of the local mills of a man who used to rather bore his fellow employees by the tales of his experiences in other factories. Finally the men decided that they were going to "cure" him and for a week when the man asked him about his former positions. He would say at the end of an account, "Well, how long did you work there, Jack?" Jack, glad to find a sympathetic audience, explained and talked at length. In the meantime his inquisitor kept a strict account of the positions and the length of time which he said that he stayed at each. At the end of the week he was confronted with a notebook in which were recorded his statements. They totaled a long list of places and 78 years of service. As the man was not yet to the absurdity of it struck everyone and they say that he took it with good grace and mended his ways forthwith.—Lawrence Telegram.

When Presidents Rested.

President Buchanan used to go home to Wheatland for a bit of rest and was a familiar figure in summer time at Bedford Springs, where he walked about unattended, just like a private citizen, and talked with anybody who had the hardihood to approach him. Grant's stay at Long Branch gave the resort popularity as "the summer capital." Cleveland, one of the hardest worked of presidents, because he attempted to give personal attention to details that no president of today can possibly examine at first hand, liked to bury himself at Buzzard's bay and fish with old cronies. Mr. Roosevelt, who seemed to carry his load jauntily, managed to get some respite from public cares by open air exercise. An old guide in the Adirondacks still boasts of having rowed McKinley for seventeen hours in a single day through lakes and rivers in the blessed quiet of the north woods.

A FALSE STANDARD OF CULTURE

has gained ground in this country which looks upon the bearing and rearing of children as something coarse and vulgar and to be avoided, but the advent of Eugenics means much for the motherhood of the race. Happy is the wife who though weak and ailing, depends upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore her to health and when headaches and backaches are a thing of the past brave sons and fair daughters rise up and call her blessed.
